

Dear Apple Hiring Team,

I hope this message finds you well and in high spirits! I must admit, writing this cover letter feels a bit like preparing for a blind date – both thrilling and nerve-wracking. After all, Apple isn't just a company; it's a global tech phenomenon, and I'd be thrilled to join the innovation party as an intern for the summer of 2024.

You see, my relationship with Apple began in the early 2000s when I got my hands on the legendary iPod Shuffle. Since then, I've eagerly followed Apple's journey through every twist and turn – from the introduction of the iPhone's first ever 'slide to unlock' feature to the unforgettable 'Shot on iPhone' billboards that seem to grace every corner of the world.

Now, as a junior student studying computer science, I've dedicated my academic journey to understanding the intricacies of technology. My coursework in computer engineering has provided me with a strong foundation, but it's my relentless curiosity and passion for innovation that truly sets me apart. I'm the kind of person who has more apps on their phone than friends – well, almost!

So, why Apple? Simple, your company's ethos aligns with my personal mantra: "Don't just think different; think boldly, think audaciously!" Whether it's revolutionizing how we communicate or crafting the sleekest, most desirable devices on the planet, Apple has consistently shown what's possible when creativity meets technology.

What can I bring to the Apple table? Well, aside from an encyclopedic knowledge of Apple product releases, I'm a problem solver, a quick learner, and an unapologetic dreamer. I don't just want to watch the future unfold; I want to help design it, and I believe Apple is the perfect playground for such endeavors.

In closing, I'm excited about the opportunity to contribute my enthusiasm, energy, and penchant for puns to your team. I'd love the chance to chat more about how I can make a meaningful impact as an intern at Apple, even if that means our meeting takes place over Zoom. Please feel free to reach out at write2nandann@gmail.com to arrange a conversation.

Thank you for considering my application. Here's to a future filled with innovation, cutting-edge technology, and of course, the occasional apple-themed joke.

Sincerely,

Nandan N
